

A linear relationship is present between the number of notifications and the amount of usage. It means that more notifications result in more use of smartphones.